THE CHELSEA FLOWER SHOW

4.1.

In May the Chelsea Flower Show starts the English Social Season, and does for flowers what Wimbledon does for tennis. The show has been organized since 1913 on the grounds of the Royal Hospital in Chelsea. It is a rich, fashionable area in the southwest of London. The place is easily accessible by public transport.

4.2.

Every year the show is attended by about 150,000 visitors. Bookings can be made via www.rhs.org.uk. Tickets sell out quickly, so buy yours as early as possible to avoid disappointment. Sometimes tickets are returned and can be bought on the spot during the show, but there's no guarantee.

4.3.
------	--

The first two days are only for the judges and the members of the Royal Horticultural Society. The Queen appears every year. Prince Charles was a 2002 Chelsea medal winner for his healing garden which he dedicated to his grandmother. In 2015, Prince Harry visited the show to see a garden designed by a charity he supports.

4.4.
------	--

The next three days are open to people who bought tickets. There are show gardens and inspirational small gardens. You can also observe new gardening trends. Some designers hand out garden plans. In addition, the Great Pavilion holds floral displays from around the world. The show finishes on Friday with a great plant sale where anyone can find a bargain.

Przeczytaj trzy teksty związane z robotami. Z podanych odpowiedzi wybierz właściwą, zgodną z treścią tekstu. Zakreśl literę A, B albo C.

Tekst 1.

ROBOT DOG

The Korean Genibo Robot Dog is built using the latest technology and materials. It can act like a real dog and needs the owner's care to be happy. It falls asleep when you do not pay attention to it for at least five minutes. You can use the remote control to move the robot or it can move freely on its own. Genibo is able to express emotions. They are displayed in its eyes as emoticons, and they depend on its mood. The robot also recognizes your commands and instructions and follows them. If all that sounds interesting, get your own robot dog.

adapted from <http://www.robotshop.com>

5.1. The author of the text

- A. describes what the robot dog can do.
- B. warns against using the robot dog.
- C. explains how to get your own robot dog.

Tekst 2.

After an exciting adventure that included spending a week with a heavy-metal band and participating in a Boston Red Sox game, a hitchhiking robot called hitchBOT met its end in Philadelphia. The idea was that kind drivers would take the robot safely from the East Coast to San Francisco, which was its destination. The robot started its American adventure near a highway in Salem, Massachusetts, on July 17. Over its two weeks in the United States, hitchBOT made its way to Boston and New York and then it was driven to Philadelphia. On the way it took some photos to document the trip on Twitter and Instagram. But last Sunday in Philadelphia the robot's journey was cut short by vandals. Unfortunately, the robot is completely broken and cannot be repaired.

adapted from <http://www.nytimes.com>

5.2. The best title for this text is

- A. KINDNESS OF STRANGERS SAVES A ROBOT
- B. TRAVELLING ROBOT DESTROYED ON ITS JOURNEY
- C. BROKEN ROBOT ON ITS WAY AGAIN

Tekst 3.

THE LITTLE ROBOT

The little robot admired the man who created it. The robot had four wheels which allowed it to get from place to place easily. It had two arms that could hold things with precision. In its head, a small lens was installed which provided the robot with a blurry image of the objects closest to him. Although the robot could follow commands, it was not able to produce understandable speech, so it couldn't communicate in words.

adapted from www.wattpad.com

5.3. The little robot was able to

- A. see everything clearly.
- B. make conversation.
- C. move around.

Przeczytaj tekst. Z podanych odpowiedzi wybierz właściwą, zgodną z treścią tekstu. Zakreśl literę A, B, C albo D.

Stonehenge is one of England's most important monuments. Its stones are visible from a long distance away. Do you know that about 100 years ago it was up for sale? It was once bought by a lawyer whose name was Cecil Chubb. The man hadn't planned to buy the monument. It just happened when he was in Salisbury. Cecil's wife, Mary, had told him she wanted some curtains, so he went to town to buy them. However, he returned from Salisbury with something different for her. When he was there, he went to an auction and became the owner of Stonehenge. Mary was probably surprised at the present which cost as much as £680,000 in today's money.

Why did he do it? It is not clear. There is a theory that a wealthy American was going to buy Stonehenge, take it to pieces and send it abroad, and Chubb wanted to stop him and save the monument. Whatever his motivation, we know that Chubb paid £6,600 for Stonehenge at an auction in Salisbury in 1915. Three years later, he donated it to the British government.

Cecil Chubb had grown up in an average family. His father wasn't a wealthy man. He made horse saddles in the village of Shrewton, a few miles west of Stonehenge. Cecil attended a local school, and then continued his education in Salisbury, where from the age of 14 he worked for a time as a teacher's assistant. He then attended Christ's College in Cambridge, leaving with Master of Arts and Bachelor of Law degrees. Later in life Chubb made a great fortune, but he didn't forget what it was like to be poor. When he made his donation, he demanded that the public shouldn't pay more than a shilling to visit Stonehenge. A separate agreement said that local people should get in free of charge.

Now Stonehenge is run by an organisation called English Heritage, and about 30,000 people living nearby still get free entry. For other visitors an adult ticket costs £14.50, which is less in today's money than it cost in Chubb's times.

Currently, the area around Stonehenge is undergoing an expensive transformation. The main road nearby has been closed and the location of the visitor centre and car park has been changed. They are now further away from the stones than before. The fence around the ruins has also been pulled down. Chubb wanted the place to remain as open as possible, and this is happening. Today very few people have heard of Cecil Chubb, but he is still remembered in Shrewton, the village where he was born.
